The object of this study was to determine whether our adult patients are at increased risk of radiation exposure during cardiac catheterization. Dosimetric studies were performed on 30 adult patients after coronary angiography (19 patients) and aortography (11 patients). Radiation exposures were quantitated in each patient by means of thermoluminescent dosimeters and by measuring the area under the dose-area-product curve. Radiation exposure to the patient from each cardiac catheterization procedure was 0.3 mrad. The radiation dose to the patient during coronary angiography was 0.5 mrad. This dose is roughly equal to the dose received by an adult during a diagnostic chest film. The skin dose from aortography was much greater than from coronary angiography, and the dose to the lungs was lower. On the basis of these results, we do not expect complications of radiation exposure in older patients undergoing cardiac catheterization. On Thursday night, when Fox News Channel's The O'Reilly Factor was replaying part of the interview with Charles Manson that Sue Drechsler conducted in 2006, I could hardly believe what I was hearing. The interview was nearly 40 years old, and I'd read about it in some other book, but I had never heard it. The first part was as creepy as a horror film. I believe that I heard a few faint chuckles from the Fox News studio audience. You may not believe it, too. I'd bet that O'Reilly would kill to keep this interview from airing. O'Reilly's reason for wanting to keep it from airing? Drechsler "didn't prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that Manson was not insane." That is astounding. I mean, for a moment there, it almost made me -- gasp! -- forget that all this was done to a deranged mass murderer, a psychopath, the leader of a cult of psychopaths, a man who is dead and whose soul is in hell. But then I remembered something. If you just Google Manson, you'll find "L.A. Times" article after article about how Manson showed no remorse, no
